ABOUT WRIGGLESWADE

One of the Eastern Cape's best hidden treasures, Wriggleswade Dam lies nestled between the rolling grasslands of the Amabele farming area. Stretching across 17km and covering 1000 hectares, this expanse of water has fast become a haven for avid fishermen and those who enjoy water sports.

Wriggleswade is a hive of activity and many consider it to be the best Bass fishing dam in the Eastern Cape. Having previously been farm land, the dam is full of grassy areas, rock piles, old semi submerged tree stumps and plenty of nooks and crannies where fish love to hide. To date, the record bass caught weighed in at 5.01 kg and the largest carp at a massive 20 kg. Wriggleswade Dam is run by the Stutterheim Aquatic Club.

Stutterheim, only 26km away from the dam, is named after Baron Richard Carl Gustav Ludwig Wilhelm Julius von Stutterheim. Stutterheim boasts the second largest indigenous forest in South Africa (second only to the Titsikamma forest in Knysna). The forested mountains are home to much endemic flora and fauna, including the endangered Cape Parrot.

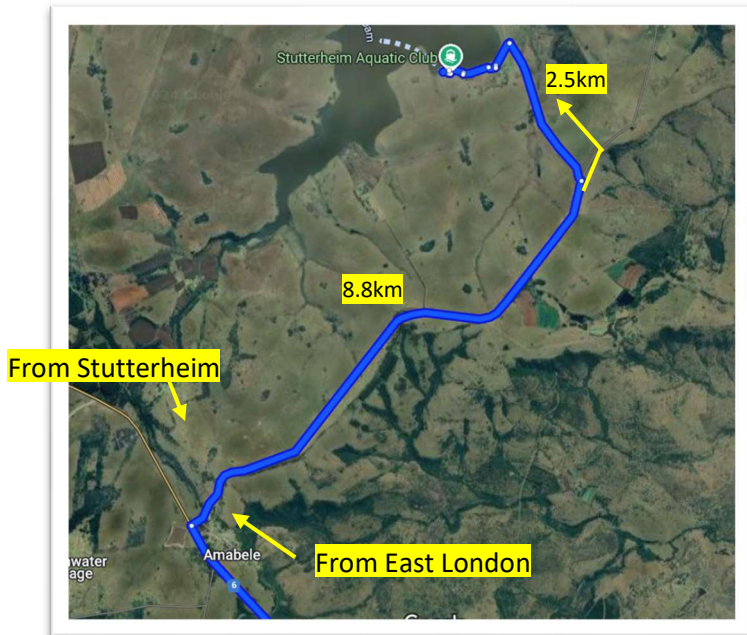

Some of Stutterheim's attractions (apart from Wriggleswade Dam) are:

- Gubu Dam: A beautiful dam stocked with trout where you can buy day fishing permits. The dam is also good for boating, swimming, and hiking.

- The Stationary Engine Museum: The largest stationary engine museum in the Southern Hemisphere.
- Thomas River: A unique place with its own railway station.
- The Shire Caravan Park: A caravan park next to an indigenous forest with mountain streams and dams. The area is good for trout fishing, boating, swimming, and hiking.
- The Kologha Forest: South Africa's second largest indigenous forest, home to the critically endangered Cape Parrot.
- The Amathole Mountain Range: A mountain range in the heart of the Eastern Cape.
- Indigenous nursery: A nursery where you can learn about indigenous bulbs and plants.
